TEXTILES

Songkets – uniquely crafted bed runners decorate each villa. Hand-woven silk textiles called Songkets are made by weaving gold and silver threads into intricate patterns creating cloths intended for grand gestures such as public theatrical performances and ceremonial displays of status and wealth.

Batiks - seen as part of the staff uniforms, Batiks used at the resort use Megamendung prints from Cirebon in Java. Directly translated as “stormy clouds”, Megamendung is a pattern influenced by Chinese artistry brought by traders to the northern coastal town during the 14th century. Transported to Bali by descendants of Javanese artisans during the glory days of the Majapahit Empire, the designs blend with the sleek aesthetics of the resort.
